Just signed up to Adobe Creative Cloud? Want to know how to make the most of your new workflow? Here are the essentials our team wouldn't work without...

Wacom graphics tablets

Wacom's graphics tablets are famous for their sensitivity, precision and customisability – Adobe even optimise their software to work with them. Use Wacom's pen tilt and pressure sensitivity to work more naturally and intuitively with your images, and the ExpressKeys custom shortcuts for a faster, more efficient workflow.

Colour critical displays

If you're working in apps like Photoshop, Lightroom or InDesign, you'll know how important it is that your display matches the final output. A colour critical display ensures you can work with confidence in the colours you see and avoid unnecessary iterations. For Broadcast check out our recommended grading monitors.

Some high speed storage

Shared storage is fantastic for creative workgroups, especially if the team often change project roles and don't want to repeatedly transfer huge files. We also have local drives from LaCie, G-Technology and PROMISE, with a variety of connections, and even ruggedised casing, in case you're heading into the field.

The right machine

Even small bottlenecks in performance can mean time wasted waiting for your processor-intensive apps to complete a task. Luckily, with 20+ years' Apple experience under our belts, as well as a longstanding partnership with HP, we can help you build custom-spec, Adobe-approved configs to support your workflow, whatever platform you choose.

And for the specialists...

Obviously, you're going to need to tweak your toolkit based on your field. Here are a few of our top recommendations – get in touch with the team for more options!

Video

Taking advantage of the fact that you can use Premiere Pro and SpeedGrade in Creative Cloud? Canon's Prime lenses are a great option at an affordable price point, and their EOS Cinema camcorders deliver fantastic image quality in an easily manageable codec. Great to get you started.

Design

Extensis's Portfolio asset management software handles all our digital media so our team can focus on creative work instead of scrabbling around for images, videos and the like. Same goes for Extensis's Universal Type Server and Suitcase Fusion, which help us stay productive (and compliant) by managing all our fonts.

3D

After Effects now has a two-way dynamic link to Maxon's CINEMA 4D. You actually get a free copy of CINEMA 4D Lite with your CC subscription, but if you find you want to take on more 3D work, we can help you move to the full version and develop your 3D pipeline, whether you need hardware or software.

Photography

Possibly the most long term Adobe-loving faction, we encourage all our photographers to complement their new combined Lightroom and Photoshop access with a shiny new DSLR (our current top pick's the Canon 5DS, thanks to its incredibly high resolution).
